The Scottish Society of Architect Artists (SSAA) was founded in 1987 to reinforce traditional relationships between art and architecture. Historically the architect was an artist – and artists became architects. Both artists and architects develop visual, mental and manual skills to work with colour, form and light to manipulate senses in others who view their work.

Architect-artists are unrestricted in their choice of media and subject matter. Traditional oils, gouache, inks and watercolours now combine with photography, computer generated imagery and other experimental media to create vigorous work that ranges from monochromatic to vivid colour.

Scottish architect-artists also enjoy a close association with the vintage Ligne et Couleur founded in Paris in 1881, which enables SSAA members to exhibit annually with their European colleagues and invite reciprocal contributions to the Scottish exhibitions.

To mark their silver anniversary, the SSAA will confer the Award of Honorary Fellows of the Society for the first time at this exhibition, which acknowledges the exceptional contributions by Hamish Haswell-Smith, Dr Patricia Cain and Sir H Anthony Wheeler to the enrichment of architectural art in Scotland. The exhibition will feature a wide range of work by members of the SSAA with contributions from members of Ligne et Couleur.

You are invited to a PRIVATE VIEW of the exhibition on Tuesday 24 from 6.00-8.00pm
